Remembering

1985 Eagle

We remember Lloyd: dedicate 85 Eagle

Lloyd Moore, born July 12, 1966, lived in Elm Springs. He attended the Elm Springs Elementary School. After graduating from eighth grade, he moved to Wall to attend high school. He graduated from Wall High School on May 20, 1984. On July 28, 1984, Lloyd fell from the back of a pickup. He died in the ambulance on the way to Rapid City Regional Hospital.

Memorial services were held in the Wall gymnasium August 1, 1984 at 2:00 p.m. Casketbearers were Jim Tines, Morris Linn, Kevin Wilson, Gary Snook, Darrin Bieber and Kevin Kleinschmit. Music at the funeral was provided by Alma Crosbie, Alice Richter, Margaret Sautter and Lucille Holsether. Paster Alvin Brucklacher gave the service. Interment was at the Elm Springs Cemetery.

-Anne Jo Holsether-

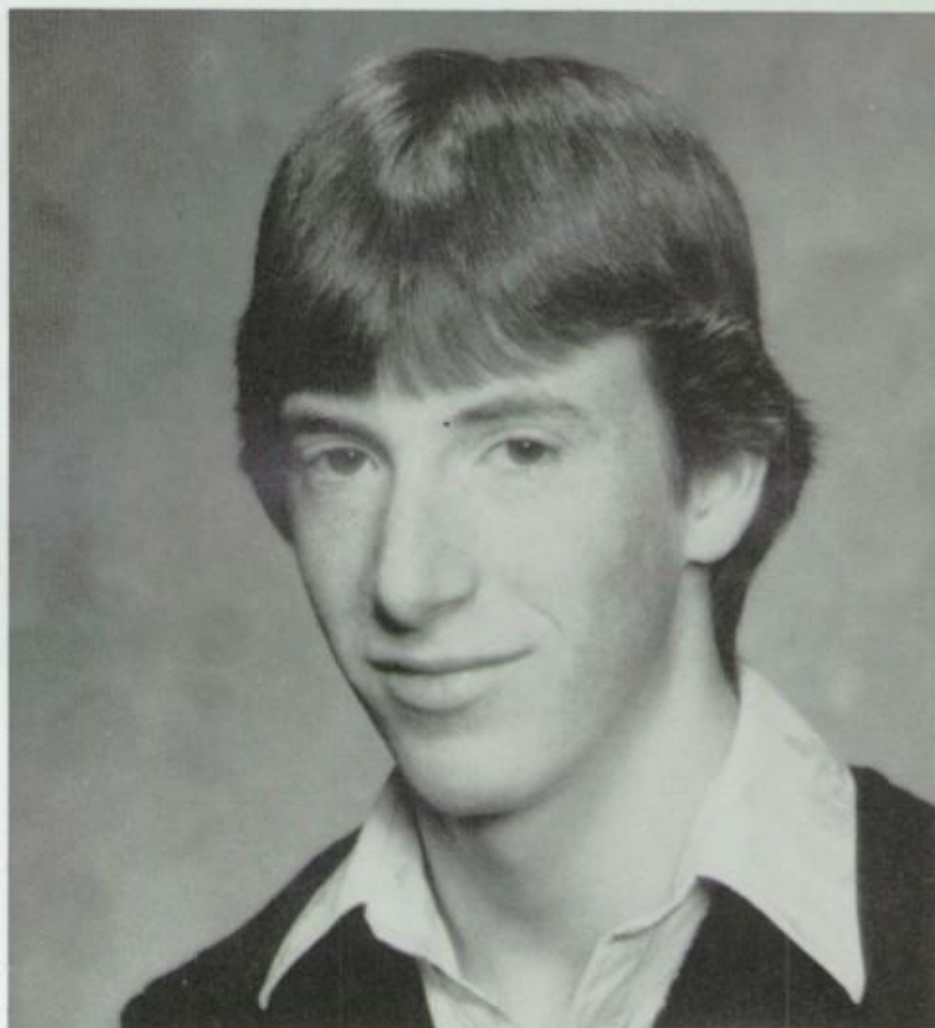

Many of Lloyd's friends asked that he be included in a special way in the 85 Eagle. Some of them volunteered to work on the pages. The yearbook staff voted unanimously to dedicate this book to his memory.

Remembering this year involved both pleasure and pain. It included memories of both triumph and defeat. Days which brought personal and team achievements were intermingled with days of self doubt and losses.

Through taking pictures and writing copy, the 85 Eagle staff attempted to capture some of the unique moments that belong only to this year at WHS. The moments have passed, as they must. Those who shared them have also passed on to something new. Still each has been touched by these events and by each other in an unforgettable way.

Remembering the struggles as well as the laughter in the sun is lasting. These memories are a gift both given and received. They are dedicated in special memory of Lloyd Moore.

The Stairway of Life

Although the road of life was rough,
to him it was o.k.
He always told everyone,
"Hey, I'm tough!"
He had his ups and downs,
his laughter and tears.
He was still young,
only eighteen years.
He was always full of laughter,
would pop a joke or two.
His days were for one thing,
to make a brighter one for you.
His friends were many,
both young and old.
To be a friend of Lloyd's made you feel like solid gold.

-From the whole gang-

Prologue

I thought highly of Lloyd
 He was always smiling
 That is what was so incredible
 When he wasn't in a good mood
 He could still crack a joke
 He had a hard life
 With losing his mother and grandfather
 I'm sorry for the problems he had
 But he seemed to be handling them fine
 I remember him as calm
 Not obnoxious or loud
 Lloyd liked to be by himself a lot
 But he still had many friends
 I remember the ways
 He tried to be different from the rest
 By piercing his ear, etc.
 He would always tell me
 That red hair and freckles were unique
 He wore his hat like a coat of arms
 I never saw him without it
 I remember cruising around in his car
 And partying with him
 When I worked at the Drive Inn
 He'd always come in and order
 A hamburger with onions
 It seemed different
 Without him coming in anymore
 He was considerate of others feelings
 You could tell him anything
 And he would understand
 Lloyd was a great friend
 I know we'll all miss him a lot

Annette Rohde adapts to American customs

Annette Rohde was a foreign exchange student at Wall High this year. Annette, who is from Denmark, commented that in the beginning she was scared, but she just had to get used to it. Annette stayed with the Shearer family during her school year here.

She commented that her first day of school was embarrassing and strange, even though she felt welcome. Annette took French, government, lifetime sports, English, and computers. She also participated in band, mixed choir, swing choir, and track. Unlike Denmark, Annette said she liked the way that sports are a part of the school curriculum. When asked which way the food differs here, she replied that in Denmark they eat more seafood, and here in the U.S. we eat more junkfood. Some of Annette's favorite foods in the U.S. are: tacos, pizza, hamburgers, steak, and all kinds of junkfood. She commented that she hated chicken noodle soup. She also said that she is planning to come back in two years for a summer visit. -Gwen Drewitz

Remembering

Someday we will remember
The times we had together,
The memories of our friends
These thoughts will last forever.

Memories of the teacher
That we all knew so well,
Waiting for the class to end
Waiting for the bell . . .

Senior Annette Rohde needs more school

Although Annette Rohde is considered a senior at Wall High, she still has two years of school left when she goes back to Skjern, Denmark. Annette said that school is tougher there than it is here. They have six classes a day which are required rather than chosen. Sports are not as important. -Gwen Drewitz-

During their free time, they toured the Capitol Building and grounds. Everyone ate lunch at Pizza Hut. They then attended the afternoon Senate and House sessions. The class was introduced in the House by Representative Gordon Pederson and in the Senate by Senator John Manke.

Scot Eisenbraun and Julie Griffin were the junior class attendants for Homecoming coronation.

During the boys basketball and wrestling season, the junior class ran the concession stand to raise money for prom. Each student worked two to three times and the class raised $720. A lot of time was put into planning all aspects of the prom banquet and dance. -Lisa Alishouse-

Board of Education provides for gifted

In September the Board of Education and Superintendent Poppe issued a summary of the 1984-85 goals and objectives for the Wall School System. One of the goals was to adopt a full service gifted program. Special training for instructional staff began this year with implementation planned for next year. A committee was established to grant professional leave to teachers who wish to attend seminars and workshops during the school year.

-Nancy Iversen-

Mr. Kenneth Poppe has served as superintendent for the Wall School System for 11 years. He has a BA from Yankton College, an MA from Bowling Green State University and an Administrative Certificate from SDSU. He also enjoys flying, farming and hunting.

Mr. Merlin Doyle has been principal of WHS for 17 years. He is also a Command Sergeant Major in the South Dakota National Guard. This year he received an award from the South Dakota Coaching Association for 25 years coaching. He coached cross country this year.

Four new classes added to curriculum

The school added four new classes to the curriculum this year. These included sophomore through senior classes in computer, French, automotives, and independent living.

Most of these classes were added because of new regulations regarding high school graduation and college entry requirements.

The new computer classes were taught by Eric Uecker. The classes consisted of a course in BASIC programming and computer literacy, as well as history of computers. One of the most interesting things that happened during the year, according to Mr. Uecker, was when his computer class made a computer dating program. Students and teachers were matched with another person or persons of the opposite sex according to similar interests and beliefs.

Ms. Nancy Iversen teaches English and French, and is the yearbook adviser. She has a BA from the University of Iowa. Special interests include reading, writing, photography, playing the guitar, and skiing.

Mr. Eric Uecker teaches Algebra I, computers, and Speech, and coaches debate and declam. He has a BS in Business Administration from USD, and a teaching certification in social science from BHSC. Other interests include swimming, weight lifting, playing the drums, and going to movies.

French I, taught by Nancy Iversen, includes both spoken and written French. An emphasis was placed on expressions that would be useful when visiting a French-speaking country including getting directions, ordering food, telling time, and making travel arrangements. Annette Rohde, a foreign exchange student, helped explain unfamiliar European customs including the system of measurements used there. A native of Denmark, she worked with two foreign languages — French and English. An amusing comment was made when the class first listened to the French tapes. Kevin Patterson remarked, "We pronounce it better than they do!"

The independent living class, taught by Marcine Patter- sen, was offered to give the basics of setting up an apartment and managing budgets. The class served breakfast every Thursday in February to raise money for F.H.A. It also held a Valentine's party for Senior Citizens. Over fifty people attended.

Good study skills bring success

Ms. Calene Babcock worked with students who have difficulty in classes requiring reading and note taking. The work was directly related to the current needs of the student. Although there were no homework assignments as such, the students worked daily on assignments they had received or on improving their study skills.

These skills included how to organize time both in school and at home. Study skills included both what to study and how to study. Reading skills covered skimming for information. Note taking was reviewed. Before a test in one of the students' classes, skills such as how to prepare and how to take a test were stressed.

Ms. Babcock indicated that she was pleased with the progress of her students which continued to improve as their efforts brought success.

Advanced English was offered again this year as a semester class. It is designed for college bound seniors and places an emphasis on literature and writing. Main objectives of the class include acquainting students with classical literature and classic themes in literature. An emphasis is placed on assisting students to express their own views in writing. Students are treated like college freshmen both in assignments and grading. Since this is an honors course, students receive an extra grade point.

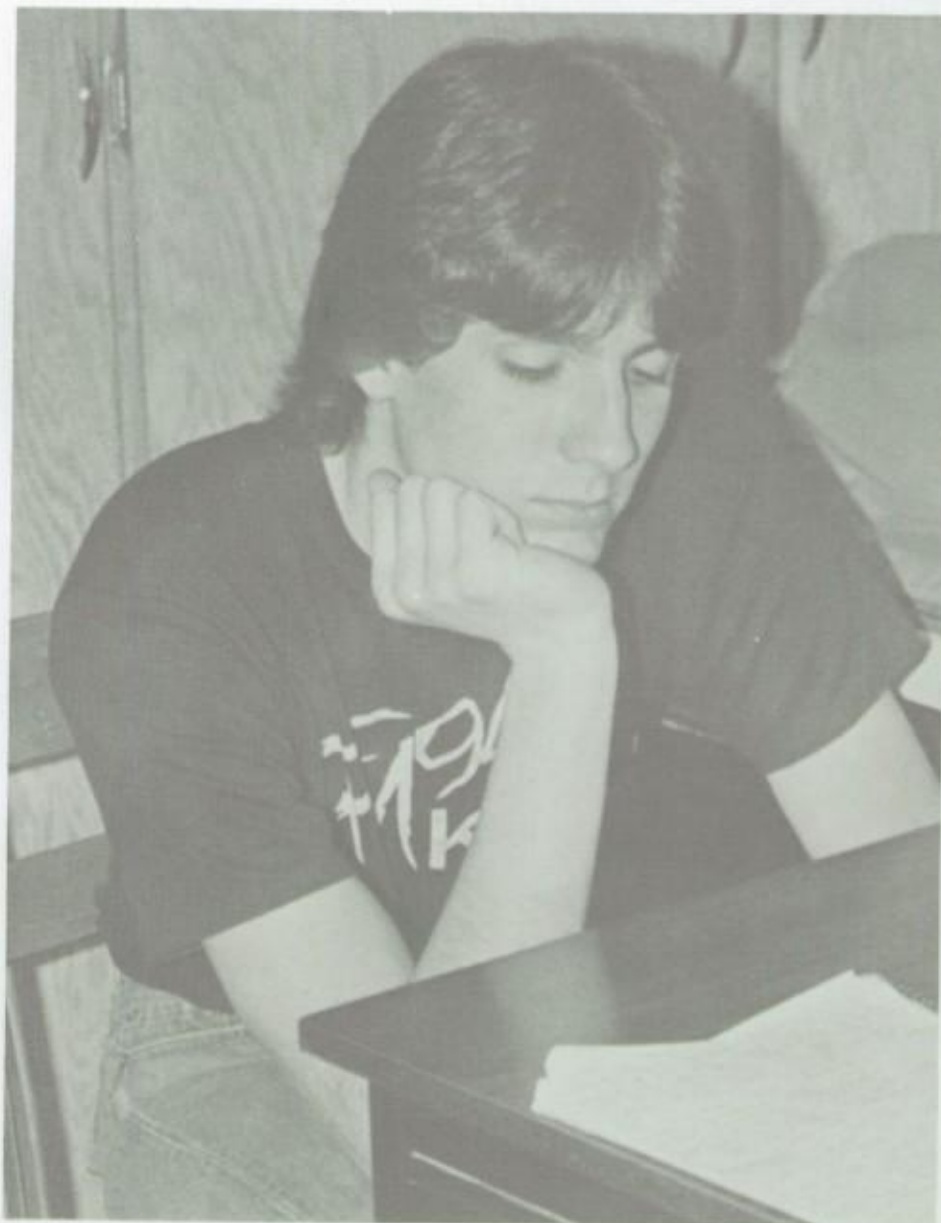

English classes were revised this year to meet new requirements. This is the last year that nine-weeks classes will be offered to juniors and seniors. Several of them were combined to form semester classes. Ms. Nancy Iversen indicated that the content of the semester classes will include most of the material covered in the shorter classes. For example, Indian literature will be included in South Dakota literature, and spelling will be included in vocabulary. The English teachers undertook the project of writing new class outlines.

Law students select stocks, attend trial

Business law students studied stocks early in the year. They chose a stock and made a fictitious purchase. During the year, they followed the growth or decline of their stock. The one whose stock made the most profit won an award of $10.

This class also took a trip to Rapid City. There they visited the court house where they saw a film on jury responsibility. Then they watched the arraignment proceedings in an embezzlement case being heard in the U. S. District Court. Later they visited the Piper, Jaffrey and Hopwood brokers.

Speakers that came to the business law class included Mr. Duane Peters and Mr. Thor Sautter. Mr. Peters spoke on partnerships and corporations and Mr. Sautter presented information on employer—employee relations and collective bargaining.

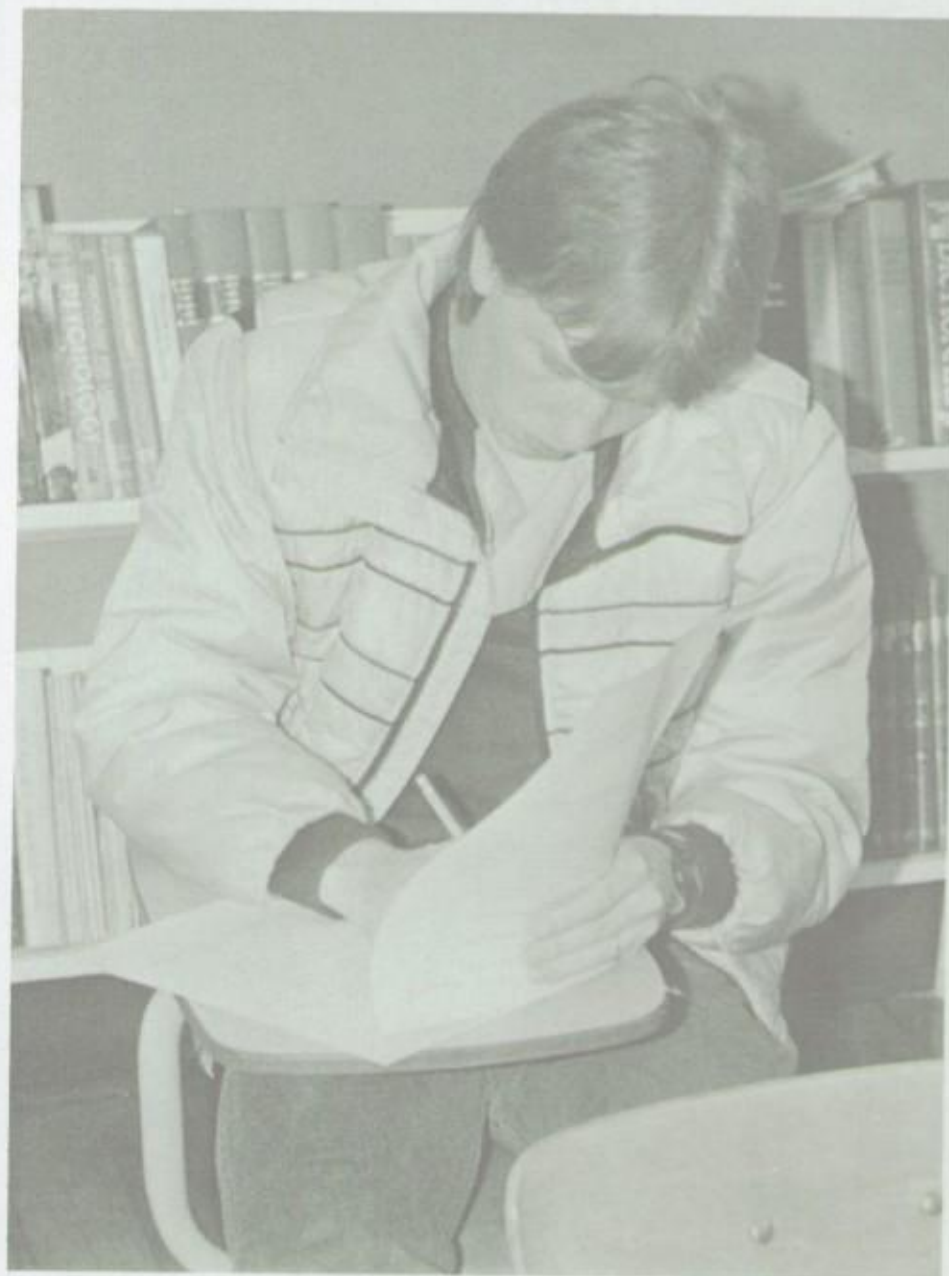

Mr. Richard Kirsch has a BA from Huron College and an ME from USD. He teaches business law, office practice, accounting, typing and shorthand. He is also junior class adviser. Other interests include his KOA campground in Interior.

Mr. Guy Smith has a BS in education from Northern State College. He teaches government, history, current events, sociology, psychology and geography. He also enjoys metallic silhouette shooting, hunting and fishing.

Current issues is a semester class offered for freshmen. These students study Newsweek and take turns making weekly reports on international, national and local events. A group discussion follows the report. Mr. Guy Smith indicated that the death of Premier Chernenko and the resumption of the arms talks were key events of this year.

Those taking sociology studied the effect of urbanization on the relationships people share. The class also covered conditions which can effect growth and the development of individuals within a society.

Psychology students put an emphasis on the healthy personality. They also studied mental disorders including the recognition and treatment of them.

The government class visited the state legislature in Pierre.

Mr. Kent Lurz taught basic and advanced wood as well as drafting. The student in basic wood built a tool cabinet. Building a canoe was the biggest project in advanced wood. The drafting classes learned how to make working drawings and how to dimension through drawings.

Mr. Bruce Swan taught vocational agriculture, welding and agricultural mechanics. The welding students made picnic benches for the park.

Ms. Marcine Patterson taught home economics. Students taking child development studied nutrition for mothers. The county health nurse spoke to the class about teenage pregnancy and childbirth. Children of different ages were brought into the classroom and observed for developmental stages. The class dyed Easter eggs with the Kindergarten to observe play with peers and coordination. A comprehensive home economics class included a unit on getting to know yourself and peer pressure. It also covered grooming and clothing and how they affect your health and emotional well being.

Rockets explode, room rearranged

Freshmen in the general science class invented a science trivia game to help them prepare for their tests. They did experimental labs to study the properties of matter and different measurements of mass. Students in the physics class made three rockets and Mark Poste's exploded before it took off. Advance biology students dissected a mink in their lab. They studied the different blood types of humans. Biology students dissected frogs and fishes. They also studied different specimen such as the worm. Students in chemistry produced hydrogen and other chemical substances in their labs. They entered into a section of organic chemistry and experimented with different compounds. Kent Patterson and Terry Wolberg participated in a chemistry test at Ft. Pierre to compete for a scholarship.

Mr. Uecker and Mr. Barnes taught two separate Algebra I classes for freshmen and sophomores. They came across a peculiar story problem and had to call a professor at the School of Mines and Technology to help them figure it out. Students in general math freshened up on basic math functions such as fractions and division. Working with proofs and constructions were introduced to geometry students for the first time. Aside from learning algebraic functions, students in Algebra II rearranged the room while Mr. Barnes went down to the office. Four students participated in senior math studied trigonometry concepts and played Trivial Pursuit after completing some of their chapter tests.

-Nicole Peters-

Mr. Jeff Barnes graduated from Dakota State College with majors in physical science and math. He teaches algebra, general math, geometry, and senior math. Mr. Barnes is the assistant coach for boys and girls basketball and head coach for track.

Walz, Lincoln teach archery, bowling

Twelve juniors and seniors participated in life time sports this year. They drove out to the city golf course to play golf and went to the Wall Bowling Lanes for bowling. Mr. Walz demonstrated the fundamentals of archery. Life time sports students can now shoot a bow and arrow correctly. Ms. Lincoln and Mr. Walz also taught volleyball, kickball, matball, and tennis. After each sport, the students took a written test. Even though the girls outnumbered the boys two to one, equal teams could still be organized. During hot days, they played kickball outside. Before each vacation the students played any game they wanted to.

-Nicole Peters-

Ms. Mary Lincoln graduated from the University of Wisconsin and majored in physical education. She also received a minor degree in Health and Coaching. Ms. Lincoln teaches health, physical education classes K-12 and is the assistant coach for gymnastics.

Graduating from BHSC Mr. Dale Walz majored in physical education. He received a minor degree in History. His first year of teaching, Mr. Walz taught physical education and health. Mr. Walz also coaches football and wrestling.

Band hosts festival; sells ornaments

In November band members sold hand-made Christmas ornaments to raise money for new instruments. An electronic piano, a bass guitar and a trap set were purchased. The 26 member band included fourteen eighth graders. They received an invitation to play at the Region B Basketball Tournament in Rapid City, but couldn't attend because Interstate 90 was closed due to a blizzard. On March 11th the band hosted a band festival. Five schools attended. After practicing together all day, they presented a concert that evening.

New coaches lead both A and B teams

Coach Bob Ivers began his first year at Wall High when he called the girls to practice on the 15th of August. He said there was a good turnout even though most of the players held summer jobs. Ivers mentioned that he was impressed with the enthusiasm which he tried to develop into desire (going the extra step). He built the team around individual strengths. Margaret Sautter, Darci Bieber, Cassie Eddings and others had good leg speed. Kari Goldhammer, Lisa Alishouse and Julie Griffin gave height inside. Coach Ivers felt the weakest point was the outside shooting, this improved towards the end of the season. Ivers built for the districts. Wall beat Crazy Horse in the first game, but fell to Kadoka in the second game. They then beat Philip to take third. -De Anna Griswold, Nancy Iversen-

Jeff Barnes was assistant coach for the A team and head coach for the B team. This was his first year of coaching. He said his goal was to improve the team throughout the year and build for the next few years. He indicated the strong point for the B team was their defense. He named Jody Botz, Carrie Kortge and Heather Schone as the most improved players.

Eagles have close games, but no wins

Going without a victory in 1984, the Eagles did have some very close games. Wall was in the lead in the Lyman County game 8-6 when the Eagles turned the ball over in the last two minutes. Lyman drove it in and scored. The White River game was tied in the final minute, but another turn over allowed a White River touchdown.

Two juniors, Shannon Burke and Scott Wilson, made honorable mention in the All Conference pick, and senior Andy Linn was chosen for the All Conference Team.

Individuals attending included Jody Botz on the uneven parallel bars, Cassie Eddings on uneven parallel bars and balance beam, and Wendy Cordes performed in all events. Wall did not place in the individual competition. Three individual gymnasts, Amy Wilsey, Wendy Cordes and Cassie Eddings returned to state competition. Amy Wilsey was the only senior on the team. Eagles take fifth

Andy Linn was the only returning letter winner for the 84-85 season. Graduating seniors and the transfer of students to Kadoka left an inexperienced team. The big highlight was winning over Kadoka. In the last few seconds, Andy Linn gave the Eagles a victory of 57 to 55. DeAnna Griswold and the other four cheerleaders thought this was the most exciting game they cheered for because the crowd was so involved. Students in the crowd and even a couple of mothers ran out on the floor after game to join in the excitement. Todd Williamson was interviewed by KEVN TV for being the only eighth grader playing on a varsity team in S.D. Andy Linn was named All Conference Honorable Mention.

Five wrestlers advance to regionals

The Eagles started the year with eleven wrestlers to fill twelve weight classes. "Luckily the wrestlers were diverse enough to fill ten weight classes," stated first year coach Dale Walz. "Experience was the thing we lacked the most though."

Returning lettermen were Scott Eisenbraun and Shannon Burke.

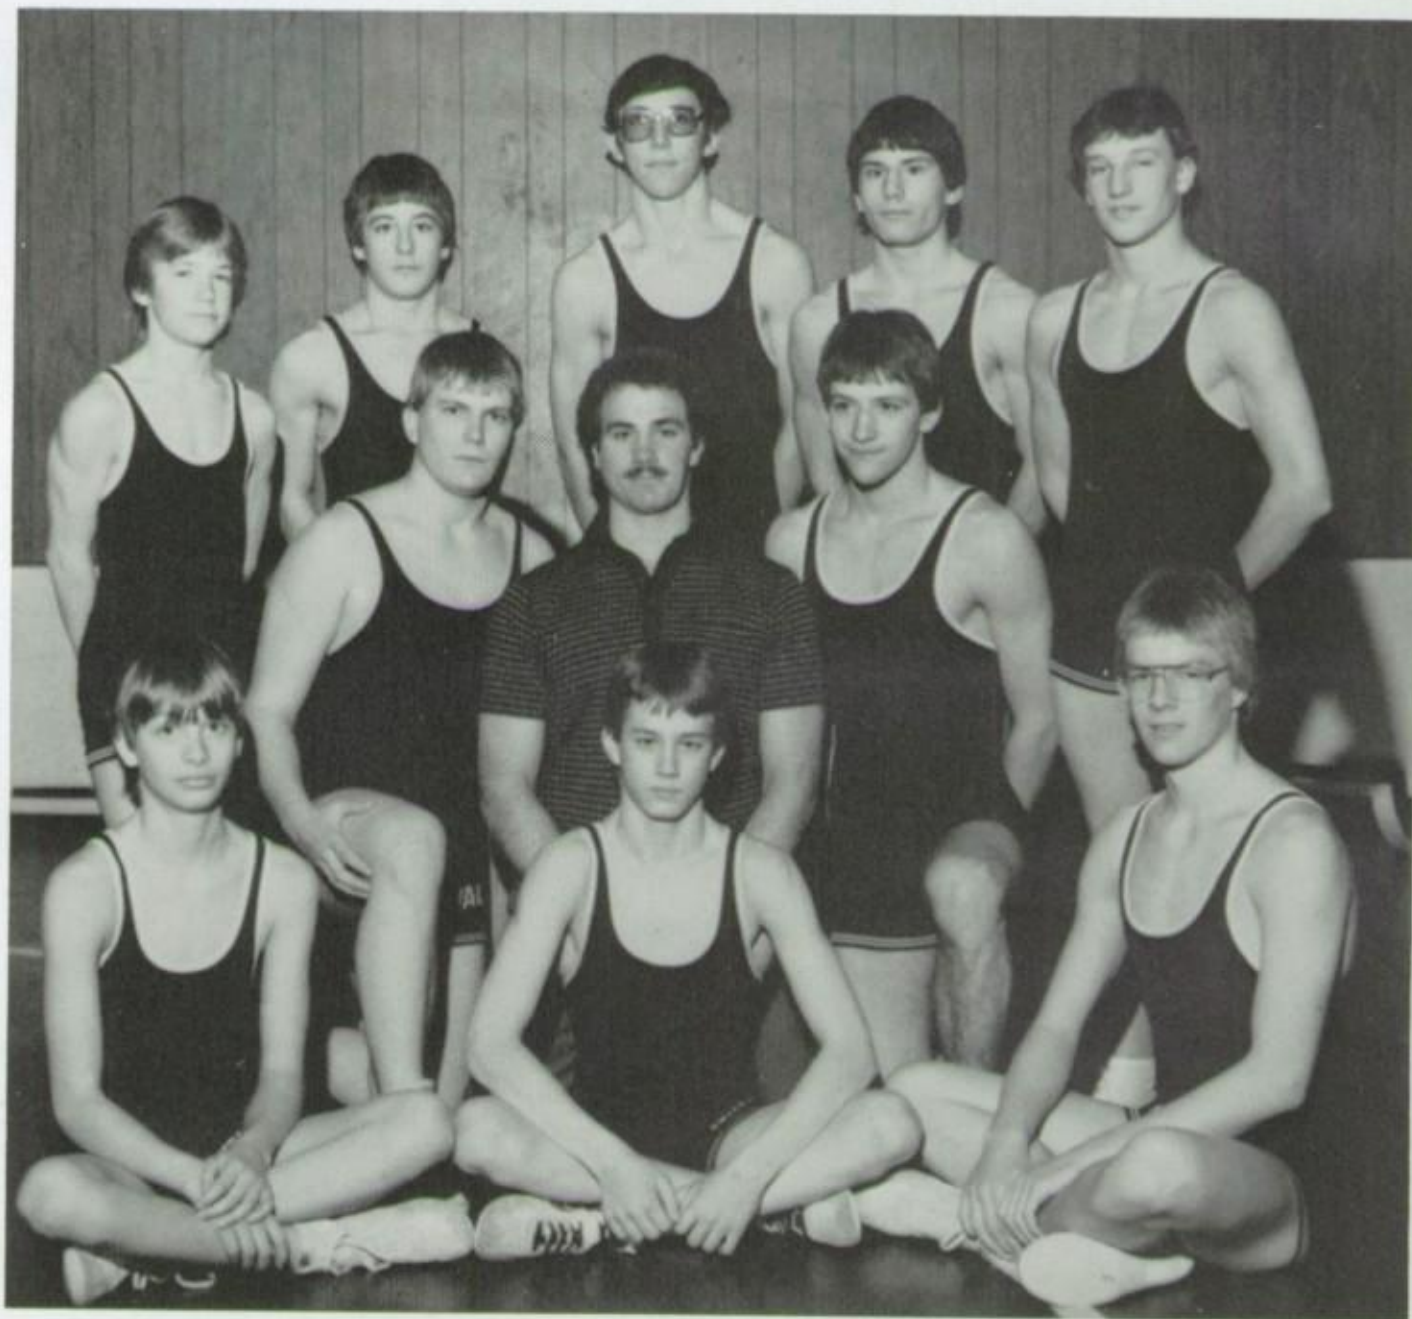

"Improvement showed up towards the end of the year. Kids that hadn't won a match started winning," said Walz. "My hard practices started paying off."

Five wrestlers from districts advanced to regionals. They were Darren Lytle at 98, Shannon Burke at 119, Will Huether at 126, Scot Eisenbraun at 145 and Joe Deering at 185. Shannon Burke advanced to state competition. -Shannon Burke-

The girls cross-country team won the Three Rivers Conference Championship at Philip on Monday, September 17. Due to illness, there was not a full team participating at the Sturgis Invitational on October 2, but the girls who did participate improved their times. The last meet before regionals was the Philip Invitational. Coach Merlin Doyle described the efforts of Jana Fauske, Tanya Keyser and Jody Botz as outstanding. The team won the first place trophy at this meet. It went on to take second at Regionals with Jana Fauske, Tanya Keyser, Jody Botz and Darcy Downey qualifying for state.

High achievers win academic recognition

Twenty-seven WHS students participated in the Chadron State College Inter-High School Scholastic Contest on Friday, March 29. Principal Merlin Doyle indicated his pleasure with this number as the contest was held on a day when students weren't required to be in school. Parent-teacher conferences were held on the same day. Jody Botz scored in the top half in general science. Also scoring in the top half were Cassie Edgings and Scott Nelson in Algebra I, Jana Fauske in American government, Katrina Kenoyer in beginning short-hand, and Amy Wilsey in chemistry. Lisa Alishouse was in the top fourth in bookkeeping. Rob Babcock finished 22 out of 106 in general biology and Terry Wolberg took 21 out of 106 in Algebra II.

Margaret Sautter and Amy Wilsey, senior members of National Honor Society inducted seven new members on Thursday, May 9. Kari Goldhammer and Annette Rohde became senior members. Juniors Lisa Alishouse, Gwen Drewitz, Mary Kenoyer and Nicole Peters also earned membership. Adviser Pam Anderson said one of the hardest things is to have people know that National Honor Society is not just for academic achievements. It also involves leadership, service and character. Superintendent Ken Poppe welcomed the parents and teachers to the induction ceremony. Richard Kirsch, the main speaker mentioned the importance of setting goals and continuing to work toward them. He said in the game of life you get as many strikes as you want to take and you can keep swinging until you hit a homerun.

Four WHS students won the President's Academic Fitness Award. Kari Goldhammer, Margaret Sautter, Brenda Wilburn and Amy Wilsey received recognition at the Awards Night program May 16. Katrina Kenoyer won the Hugh O'Brian Award. Brenda Wilburn won the John E. Clarke Memorial Scholarship of $100. Two Hayes Memorial Scholarships of $900 were awarded to Shaun Ruland and Andy Linn. The Jon Hustead Award of $200 was given to Amy Wilsey. Amy Wilsey and Bill Besson won the Army award for academic and athletic achievement.

Students participate in government

Student Council members faced the task of selecting events for Homecoming after their election of officers. Mary Kenoyer was elected president with Vicki Saunders, vice president, and Amy Wilsey, secretary-/treasurer.

Later the council studied the honor roll and merit roll system. These rolls had consisted of students who had all A's or those who had all A's and B's. Student Council succeeded in having the system changed to a grade point rather than letter grade. Thus someone with several A's and a C could still be on the honor roll.

In the spring the Student Council sponsored an air band contest as a fund raiser. Although there were several last minute entries, a total of nine bands participated. They represented several kinds of music including jazz and country as well as rock. Heather Schone won the contest doing a song from "Annie".

Darcy Downey, Kari Goldhammer and Margaret Sautter spent a week in Washington, D. C. attending the VII Session of the 1985 Presidential Classroom. High school students from across the United States and abroad participated in this program. They attended fifteen seminars. The subject matter ranged from the judiciary to the challenge of the Presidency. Students also toured public facilities located in the nation's capitol including the White House, Arlington Cemetery and the Smithsonian Institute.

Tuition for the WHS students was provided by the Wall School District, the Wall Education Association, the Wall Chamber of Commerce, as well as several other local organizations.

Cheryl Bielmaier, Darcy Downey, Margaret Sautter and Kari Goldhammer spent approximately two weeks in Pierre. They assisted Senator Lyndell Petersen, Senator Carl Ham and Senator Jack Manke as pages. While there they learned about state governmental processes.

Eagle wins again; staff uses computer

On October eighth Bill Besson, Dorreen Glade, Warren Werner, and Nancy Iversen went to Brookings to attend the High School Press Convention. They were presented an All-State award for the 1984 Eagle which placed third in the state. This is the second time staff members have returned with the black and white plaque.

During the nine weeks yearbook class, each staff member was assigned six pages. Each did two pages for the 1985 Eaglet, the elementary yearbook, and four pages for the Eagle.

Nicole Peters, Wendy Lentz, Tim Wolberg, Shannon Burke, Warren Werner, and Jeff Sorensen all took pictures for the yearbook.

For the first time the yearbook staff used a computer to put the Eagle together. Instead of typing body copy and captions on copy sheets, the staff typed on the computer. Students could make changes and corrections more easily. Then the information was saved on floppy disks, which were sent to Jostens. -Jeff Sorensen-

Speakers, actors enter contests

Two students, Kari Goldhammer and Vicki Saunders, worked under the direction of Mr. Eric Uecker to prepare for the declam contest held at St. Martin's. Vicki received an excellent rating for her poetry reading, and Kari was rated good in her humorous interpretation.

Mike Hall and Rob Babcock attended a debate at Rapid City Stevens. They debated four rounds winning one of them. Mr. Uecker, their coach, was pleased with their first attempt.

Rob Babcock, Jim Cudmore and Warren Werner attended Student Congress at Rapid City Stevens. Student Congress is a legislative simulation. Other schools attending included Central and Hot Springs.

"The Waiting Room" received an excellent rating in the One-Act Play contest. It is the story of blind people who wait to be cured. Ms. Lisa Haffner, the director, said the parts were difficult because they were older people who were blind. She was pleased with the performances and commented that Vicki Saunders did especially well.

Melo-drama returned when "The Ballad of Gopher Gap" was performed in March. The audience was drawn into the play by singing "Daisy" before the curtain and by being encouraged to boo the villain and cheer the hero. "This was a fun play to do," Ms. Haffner commented.

Margaret Sautter received the best actress award for playing Verlinda Springblossom. Best actor went to Robbie Feller for his portrayal of Bunco de Sneer. Kari Goldhammer (as Flora Fourflusher) won best supporting actress, and Shannon Burke (as Rocky Romantic) was best supporting actor. Ms. Haffner announced Vicki Saunders for the Director's Choice. She said Vicki did an excellent job in both plays. She played Crazy Nanette in "The Ballad".

Pianists for the spring play were Lisa and Jana Fauske.

Quartet attends All-State Chorus

Margaret Sautter (soprano), Bonnie Cudmore (alto), Bill Besson (tenor) and Kevin Patterson (bass) joined the All-State Chorus in Watertown November 2 and 3. About 900 singers from schools across the state participated in this annual gathering.

Some of the pieces sung this year were "Play Party," "Shenandoah," and "Exultate Justi In Domini," which was sung in Latin. Vocal instructor Ms. Carla Brucklacher prepared the students. The choir also sang "Battle Hymn of the Republic" with the South Dakota Orchestra.

Wall hosts Badlands' Music Festival

On March 11, Wall hosted the Badlands' Music Festival. Four other schools, Kadoka, Midland, Philip and New Underwood attended.

Milo Winter, band director at Stevens High School, worked with the combined bands all day to prepare for the concert presented that evening. The band performed five numbers including "Bandology," "Basin Street Blues," and "Rhythm of the Winds."

Dr. Ben Henry, music instructor at Black Hills State College, conducted the combined choir. The choir sang four numbers including, "Hey Look Me Over," and "God Bless the USA." Chris Parks, who once sang with The New Christy Minstrels, did a solo, "Hello Again."

Eight soloists; three groups win superiors

Eight of the ten soloists who entered the Spring Contest in Mission on April 4 received a superior rating.

Bill Besson, Kevin Patterson, Cheryl Bielmaier, De Anna Shearer, Wendy Cordes, Amy Wilsey, Margaret Sautter and Kari Goldhammer earned the highest possible rating.

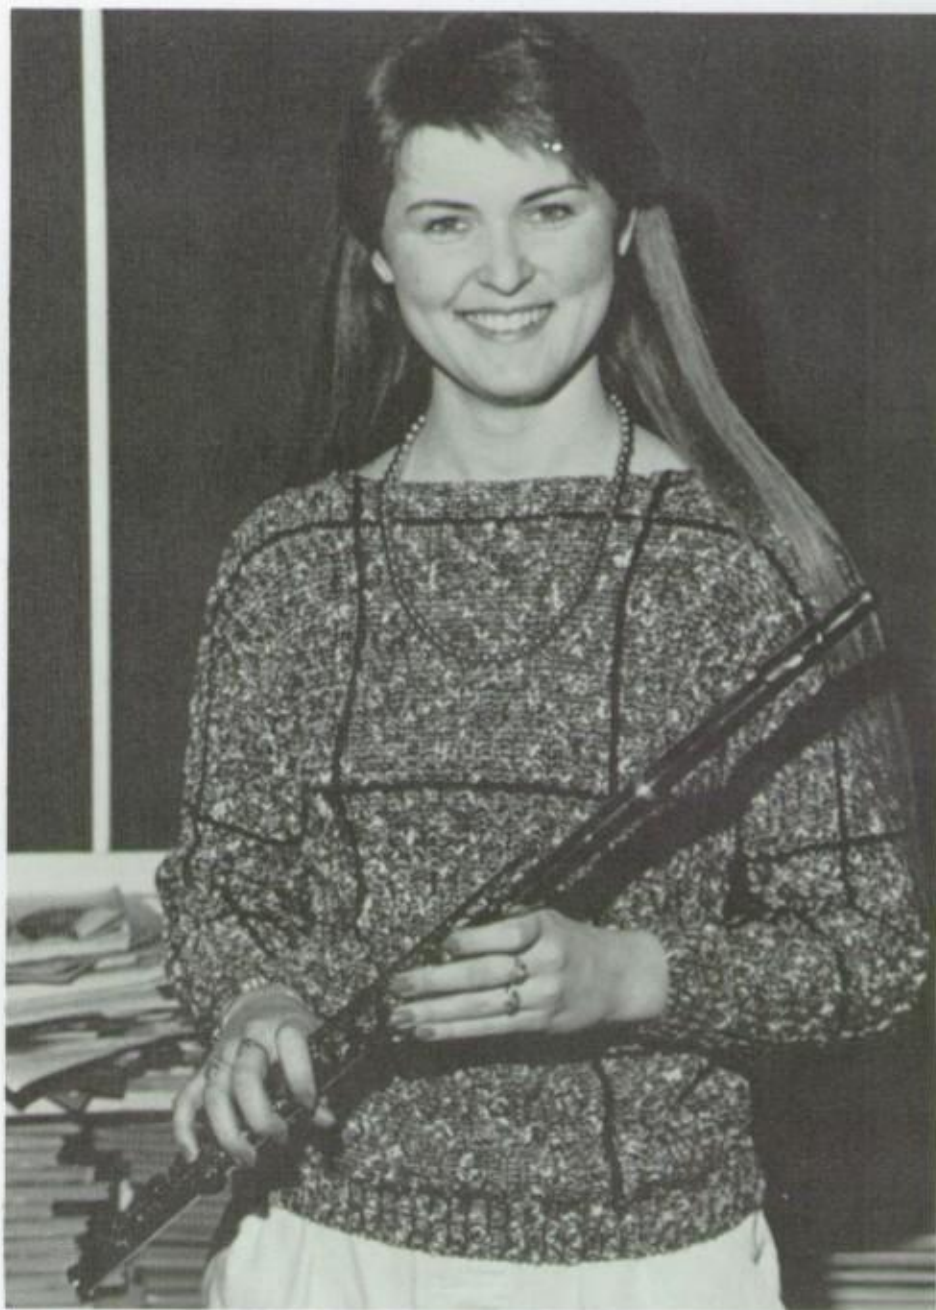

Girls triple trio, girls large group ensemble and swing choir also received a 1 or superior rating.

"It was a damp, rainy day," commented Ms. Carla Brucklacher, the choral director, "but it sure didn't dampen our spirits as we all trooped back and forth between two buildings to support each other. We always had a cheering section of all our students and many parents."

Cheryl Bielmaier was the only entrant in the instrumental contest. She also received a superior rating for her flute solo.

Cheryl Bielmaier won a superior rating for her performance of "Serenade" at the Spring Contest. Steve Newnum took this picture later in the music room at WHS.

FHA celebrates, shares with others

Future Homemakers of America accepted the theme "Celebrate yesterday, today and tomorrow". Celebrations included having secret pals and a slumber party at Wendy's. In February the FHA went on a ski trip to Terry Peak and held a Valentine's party for senior citizens. In May FHA members modeled fashions in the style show, "We Are the World".

Under direction of Ms. Marcine Patterson, adviser, the members raised funds with a cake sale, biscuit breakfasts during February and a slave sale in April. Members who were purchased worked one day for their "owner". The Chapter received an award for money presented to the Statue of Liberty Fund.

FHA officers were Jodi Baker, president, Wendy Cordes, vice president, Ronda Heathershaw, secretary, Jody Botz, treasurer, Anne Jo Holsether, parliamentarian, Jana Fauske, historian-reporter, and Heather Schone, entertainment,

FFA team takes 1st in land judging

The Wall FFA Chapter had a fruit sale in October. Daryl Dartt was the high salesman. The Wall FFA team took first place in land judging at the Great Plains Judging held at Old town Dam in Wall. The team of four went to Oklahoma City for the International Land, Range, and Pasture Judging. FFA members went to many judging contests and schools in preparation for state competition in Brookings on April 14-16. On April 11, the FFA and FHA had a chili dinner with a slave sale following. They made $1,016.50 in sales of slaves (members who will work one day for whoever purchases them).

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The 1985 Eagle could not have been prepared without the cooperation of many people. Steve Newnum's help as our professional photographer is acknowledged with appreciation. Mary Jane Doyle, high school secretary, helped keep the staff up on changes taking place within the school. She also answered a great variety of questions. Elsie Mortensen kept records of the money collected from sales and advertising. The faculty and students cooperated by answering questionnaires and polls. All of this help is gratefully acknowledged.

THANK YOU

Eagles remember 84-85, face new challenges

The 85 Eagle, delivered in August, held a collection of memories of a year completed. Several seniors have entered college. Others have found jobs and moved away from Wall. Annette Rohde has returned to Denmark. The teachers and underclassmen at WHS have already undertaken preparations for a new year. Wherever the Eagles who shared 84-85 find themselves, they have shared a unique experience. Because of that experience each one has been changed. Remembering is something they are as well as something they do.

from The Old Man

The plaster was broken and giving away like a cracked mirror hanging upside down. Even though the old man had nothing to live for, he was grateful for what he had. He was as rich as many movie stars even though it was only pride and happiness. He was treated like a king in his own fashion, and also in his dreams. But, yes, this old man was rich indeed. Rich in life.
